Mary Kom, also spelled Marykom, is an Indian film actress and former world boxing champion. She was born on 17 February 1988 in the city of Imphal in Manipur, India. Kom began her professional career in 2007 with her feature film debut in Sriyuth Punyamukthai. In 2008, Kom became the first Indian woman to win an Olympic boxing medal when she won a silver in the women's 57 kg contest at the Beijing Olympics.[6] Kom followed this with a bronze medal in the women's 57 kg contest at the London Olympic Games. Naphthyl vinyl ketone and N-methyl-alpha-tert-butyl-alpha-phenylacrylic anhydride are useful intermediates for preparation of a wide variety of biologically active compounds. N-methyl-alpha-tert-butyl-alpha-phenylacrylic anhydride can be used for preparation of the important pharmaceutical compound, heparin-moxifloxacin conjugates. A recent disclosure (Helv. Chim. Acta, 79:2277-2288 (1996)) teaches the use of a lithium halide-catalyzed reaction of N-methyl-alpha-tert-butyl-alpha-phenylacrylic anhydride with dimethylacetylenedicarboxylate to prepare N-methyl-alpha-tert-butyl-alpha-phenylacrylamide. One prior art method involves the use of expensive, reagent grade lithium halides in the preparation of N-methyl-alpha-tert-butyl-alpha-phenylacrylic anhydride (Houben-Weyl, Volume H.14, 1981, page 531). A second method (U.S. Pat. No. 4,466,859) requires the use of sodium hydride to prepare the alpha-tert-butyl-alpha-phenylacrylic anhydride starting material. There has been a long felt need in the art for a process for the preparation of N-methyl-alpha-tert-butyl-alpha-phenylacrylic anhydride. Moreover, it is desirable that any such process involve the use of readily available starting materials, be easy to perform, and have a minimal number of
